Thank you for considering submitting your work to Denali. Completion of this form does not guarantee publication. All works are submitted to an Editorial Board, which chooses works for a variety of reasons including style, statement, voice, creativity, and originality. For pieces selected for publication, Denali will receive one time publishing rights. After publication, Denali retains the right to use the literature or artwork in Art in Transit or in other Denali sponsored events. If you object to Denali using your submitted works in the promotion of the magazine, please make a note on your submission form. Denali Literary Arts Journal considers all original submission of art and writing regardless of medium, style or subject matter. We do not censor except for literary and artistic merit, and we do not hold artists and authors to theme-based issues.
