

Lane Community College Foundation

2013 ANNUAL REPORT TO DONORS

POWERING EDUCATION. ANYTHING'S POSSIBLE.

We want to be a catalyst that will shape and grow our local economy ... we want to bring our corporate and community partners together to chart the course of our local and regional industry for the next fifty years.

THANKS TO FRIENDS like you, 2013 was another successful year for Lane Community College and our students. When our students achieve success, so does our community as a whole.

Many people are surprised when I tell them that in any given term, nearly ten percent of Lane County residents are enrolled in a class at Lane. But it's not that surprising if you think about it. Whether it's a transfer student preparing for future studies, a diesel mechanic learning his or her trade, a chef in training, an older adult making a career change, a community member taking a language class, an entrepreneur getting their start through our Small Business Development Center, or a nurse getting her bachelor's degree from OHSU here on our campus, we are the hub of our community's education.

This next year will mark Lane Community College's 50th anniversary. Before we celebrate a historic anniversary, I want to celebrate the successes of the past year with you. In 2013, you helped us transform lives. We distributed nearly $700,000 in foundation scholarships to our students. We had our most successful Harvest Dinner to date, raising $300,000 to support the Foundation and our students. We celebrated four new distinguished alumni. We welcomed a new Foundation Director, and the Foundation Board and LCC Board of Education began crystallizing plans for what's next for the Foundation and the College.

So, what is next? It's clear that as we move forward, the Foundation and donors like you will continue to play an even more critical role. We need more scholarships that change the lives of students like Caitlin Roeder, whom you will read about in this report. We need more modern facilities. As I write this, the center of our campus is under construction as we create a 21st-century campus hub that will provide students with a one-stop shop for library, tutoring, technology support and collaborative meeting space. We want to be a catalyst that will shape and grow our local economy, not only do we want students to graduate job-ready, but we want to bring our corporate and community partners together to chart the course of our local and regional industry for the next fifty years. These are big dreams, but I know that with friends like you, they are possible.

Mary Spilde
Lane Community College President

IT'S HARD FOR ME TO BELIEVE that I've served as the Director of the Foundation for a year. What a year it's been! Thank you so much for welcoming me into this new role – your support and enthusiasm for Lane Community College and our students has made such a difference.

Our Foundation team spent the last year building on the fantastic work done by my predecessor, Janet Anderson. During her 11 years as Foundation Director, Janet grew the Foundation into a fundraising powerhouse, and we are now poised to continue our upward trajectory. It's been an exciting time – we have several new hires in the office and we continue to welcome new volunteers and industry partners.

One of the best parts of my job is that it is twofold. I spend a lot of my time speaking with friends like you about gifts in support of our students, and fundraising is indeed a very large part of what I do. But I also get to oversee the other side of our operations – what happens after a gift is made. I get to see the reaction of our students when they realize that they received a scholarship and their life has changed. I am able to see the transformation of a building from an outdated structure into a robust hub for learning, and the reactions of the students and faculty who are able to use new resources available to them. I am able to see endowments grow, opportunities expanded and careers started. Of course, I am just a facilitator – it's really you who are making all of these things happen.

I invite you to visit our campus, talk with a scholarship recipient or a faculty member, and see what you made possible. I guarantee that you will be inspired, moved, and satisfied when you see what you have done. I know that I am inspired by you, your support, and your passion for our students – and I am so excited to continue this journey with you.

Wendy Jett
Director

I get to see the reaction of our students when they realize that they received a scholarship and their life has changed. I am able to see the transformation of a building from an outdated structure into a robust hub for learning.

"We appreciate what one person or one organization can do to empower another person and help them achieve their dreams, and we look forward to continuing our support of Lane and its students."

LEADERSHIP/INDIVIDUAL DONOR

Giving the Gift of Music

Niles and MaryAnn Hanson's dedication to the arts and their commitment to supporting the community shines through the scholarship gifts they make to students who are involved in music programs at Lane Community College.

Both grew up in homes where music was an integral part of their lives and they passed on their passion for a musical education to their children. Niles has two children who both play trumpet and cornet as did Nile's father and his grandfather. Niles played with his son in the Marist High School Band, and taught them that, "You can always play a duet, trio, or in a band, for your entire lifetime."

"Many years ago, I felt like we were just writing a check and that was ok, but when we embellished the scholarship with season tickets to the Eugene Symphony, it added a layer of awareness and inspiration to the student recipient's educational experience. Eugene is an arts-rich community and students benefit from the exposure to such a fine example. Symphonic music speaks to me, it feeds me something I need, so I want to share it with our scholarship awardees," says Mary Ann.

Niles and MaryAnn say, "It is very rewarding to partner with the LCC Foundation and we believe President Mary Spilde to be quite remarkable, she's always leading by example, and we feel lucky to have someone so strong and clear at the helm." Remembering their own struggles as young adults increases the joy they feel in alleviating the financial strain students face. They feel thankful to be able to offer support and in return develop a sense of gratitude.

"When students thank us in letters, I feel grateful we can help, and I treasure the heartfelt sentiments I receive from them, because to me it feels like "mission accomplished." Niles and MaryAnn view Lane, themselves, and the scholarship recipients as the three legs of a stool, all dependent upon each other for success. "We appreciate what one person or one organization can do to empower another person and help them achieve their dreams, and we look forward to continuing our support of Lane and its students."

ROBERT AND BERNICE INGALLS STATON SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENT

Recipe for Success

At the age of 15, Caitlin Roeder was thrown into a world of adult responsibilities. After a childhood of abuse, Caitlin became an emancipated minor, eventually taking in her younger siblings and offering them a safe haven.

A determined young woman, Caitlin searched for full-time employment while homeschooling herself to obtain her GED. Her age and inexperience were barriers to finding employment with living wages and benefits. At the age of 18, she began a full-time job at Springfield Creamery and quickly began earning a series of promotions as her employers recognized her dedication and work ethic. She was with the company for seven years before pursuing her dreams of a college education and cooking professionally. She chose Lane Community College for its well-known, and highly sought after, Culinary Arts program.

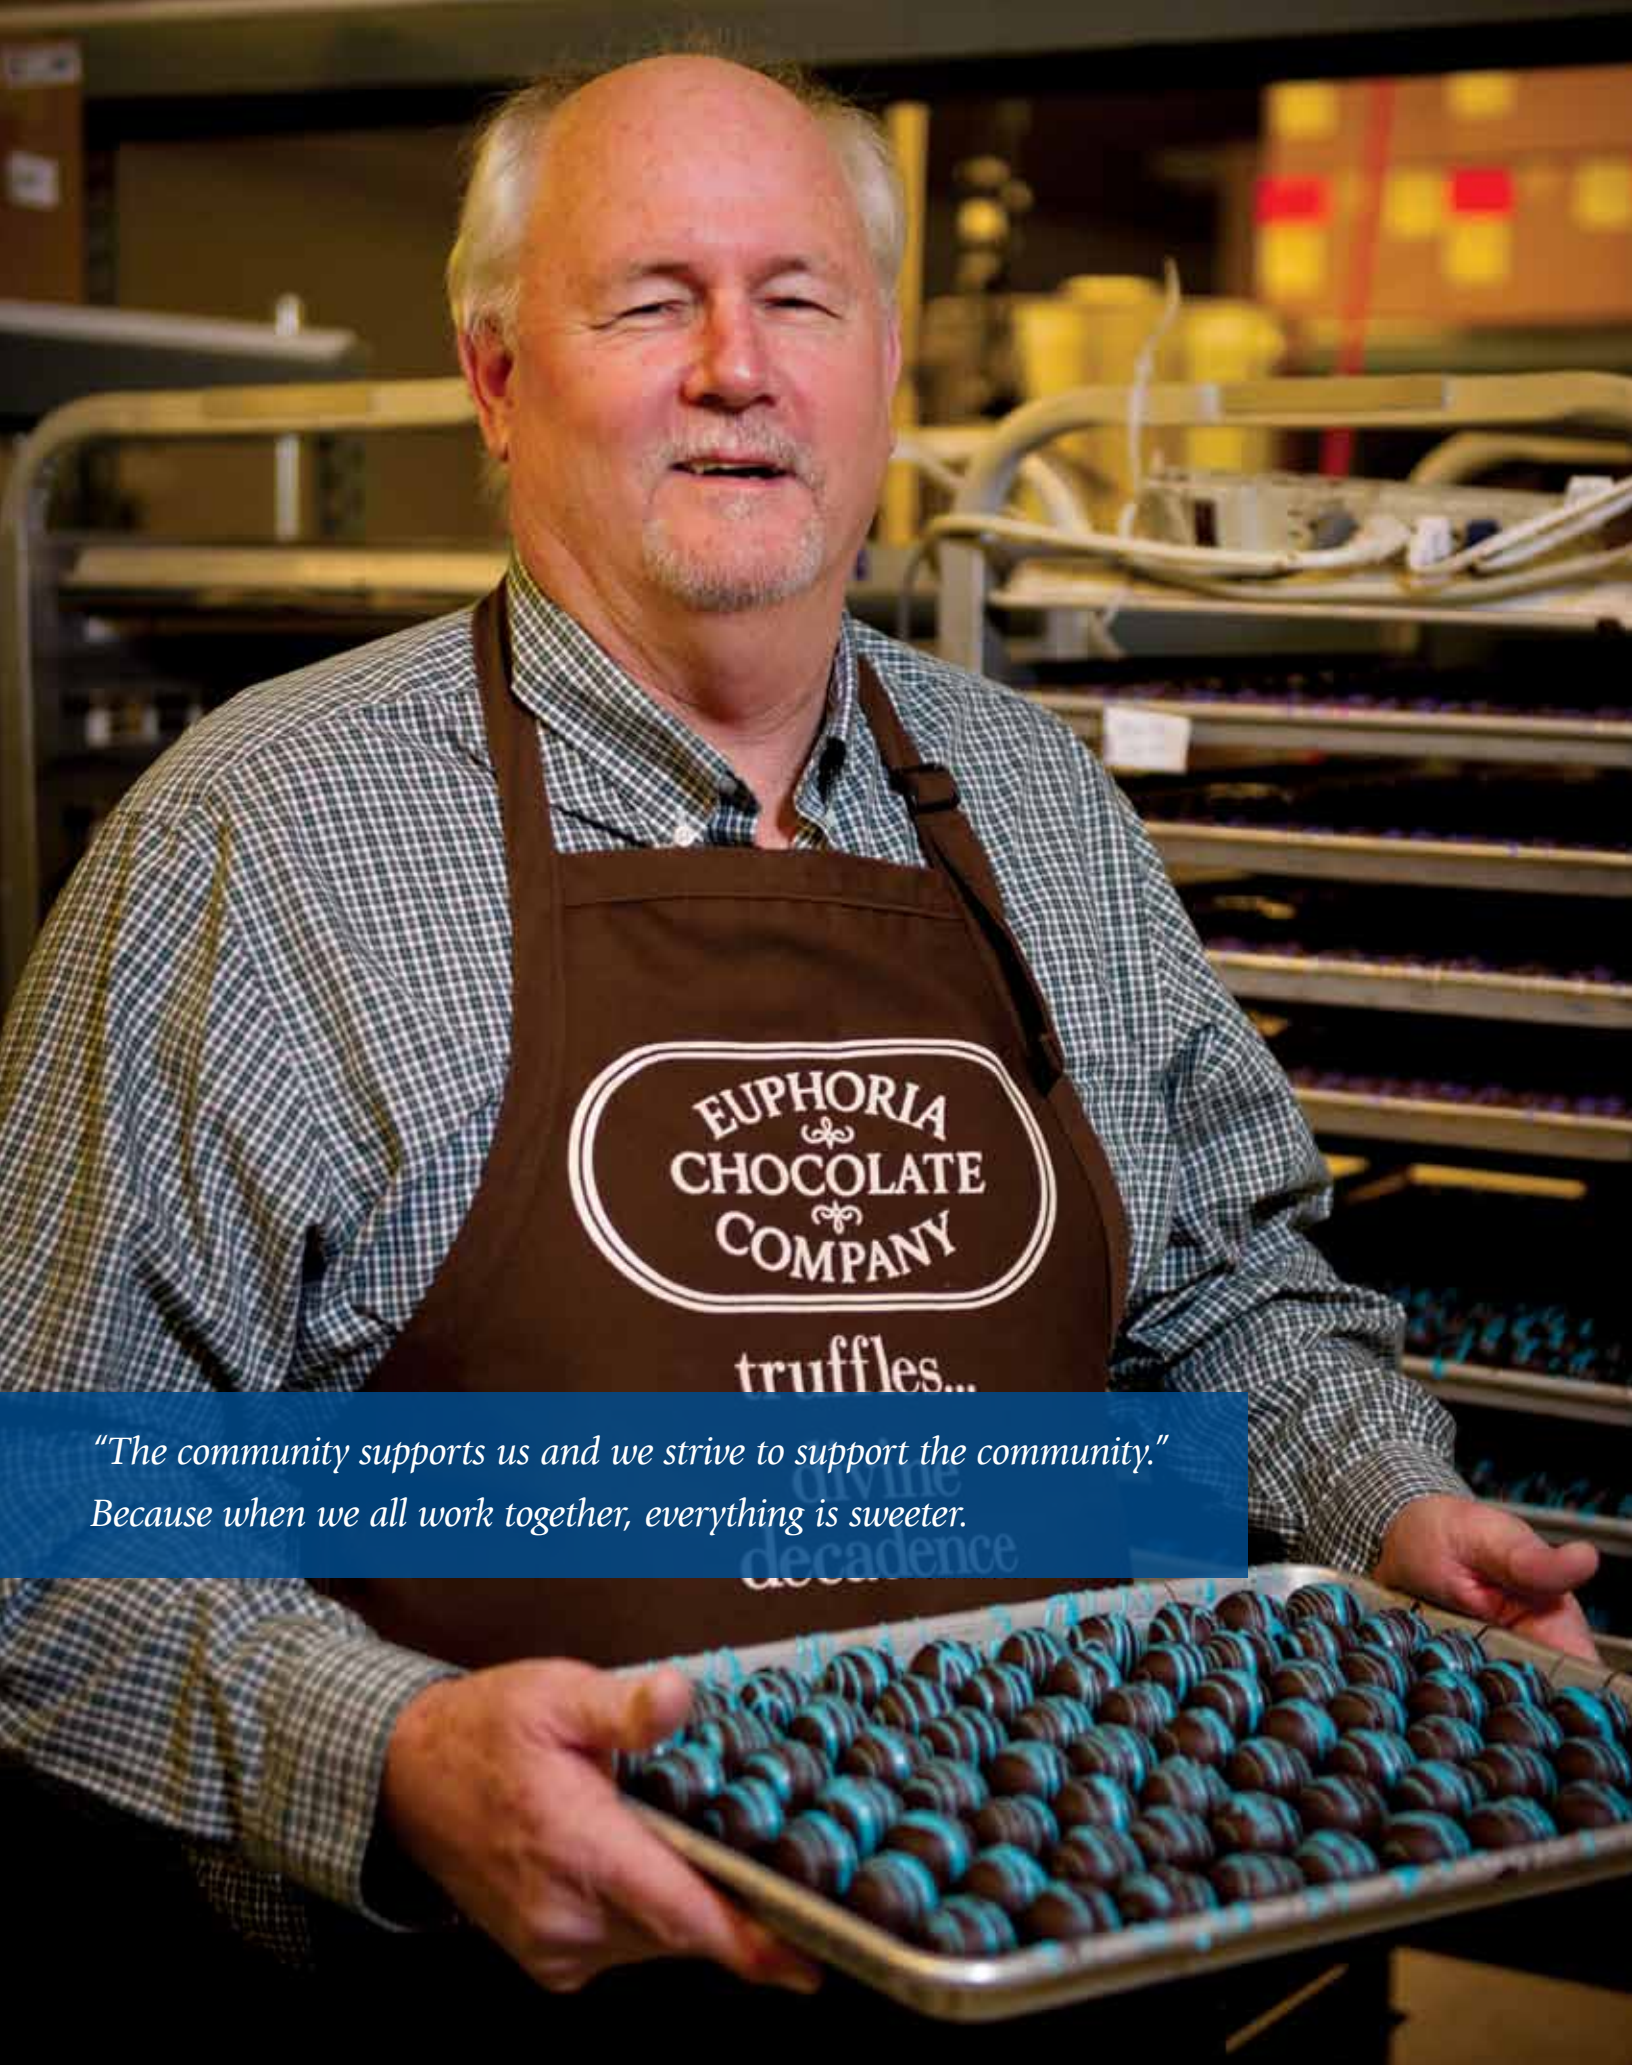

A recipient of the Robert and Bernice Ingalls Staton Scholarship, Caitlin is able to spend less time working, and more time focusing on her full course load, while still being able to afford quality childcare for her daughter. As a single mother, additional financial support makes a world of difference. "Without the scholarship, I wouldn't be able to be here because I need to know my daughter's in a safe spot," she says. Her daughter participates in the early education program on Lane's main campus. Caitlin loves being able to see her daughter thriving during the day, appreciates the value of the program, and the quality of the care providers.

In addition to the other obstacles she has overcome in her life, Caitlin also experiences significant hearing loss, requiring her to work a little bit harder to achieve success in school. She appreciates the support she has received from her instructors at Lane and is proud of her success. After the struggles and triumphs she has endured and risen above, Caitlin believes strongly in her ability to achieve her goals. Her perseverance, willingness to work hard to achieve her dreams, and desire to end the cycle of abuse, is all for her daughter. She plans on opening her own catering company after her graduation from Lane's Culinary and Hospitality Management Program in January 2015.

During the academic year, the Lane Community College Foundation assisted 450 students with scholarships and awards totaling almost $700,000

ALUMNI STORIES

Sweetest Rewards

Bob Bury made life a whole lot sweeter for Eugene residents and people around the planet when he founded Euphoria Chocolate Company in December of 1980. He began making his signature chocolates at night in the kitchen of a local restaurant.

Today, Euphoria has three shops in Eugene and their chocolates can be found on the shelves of stores throughout the northwest.

Bob grew up in the bay area and received a degree in economics. He ended up in Eugene as a skilled auto technician but was not exactly where he wanted to be in his career. The Lane Community College Small Business Program appealed to his spirit of entrepreneurship and he decided to complete the three-year program. Bob benefited from "working with people who have similar situations - new business owners learning the intricacies of tax law, balance sheets, and record keeping."

Bob still feels a deep connection to the program that helped him start his successful business. "I feel a collegiality with other businesses that went through the program. It feels like a family." Bob has many current business relationships that were fostered during his time in the program, and he feels that it not only gave him the skills needed to succeed, but also the connections to build lifelong relationships.

One stand-out aspect of Bob's time at Lane was the instructor of his program, Jean Names Cross. He finds her to be a "remarkably talented" person; he still meets with Jean from time to time. "It's like seeing an old friend but it ends up being all about business," he says.

Bob sees Lane Community College as a "compliment to a university education." He also hires qualified Lane graduates and appreciates that Lane prepares students for jobs that don't require a four year degree. "Lane is an important community resource," he says.

Euphoria Chocolates makes many contributions to the local community and to Lane, and Bob says, "The community supports us and we strive to support the community." Because when we all work together, everything is sweeter.

"Teaching is something I've always done. What do you do at a restaurant? You hire people, train people, hone their skills, and then eventually they leave when they've learned as much as they can from you."

INSTRUCTOR PROFILE

Teaching the Art of Food

After working in restaurants from London to Hawaii, Clive settled in Eugene as a chef at Ambrosia. Shortly thereafter, he joined the Advisory Board for the Culinary Arts Program at Lane.

Three years later, an instructor position was open and he thought, "I could do this." While he had no formal training as an instructor, he realized "teaching is something I've always done. What do you do at a restaurant? You hire people, train people, hone their skills, and then eventually they leave when they've learned as much as they can from you."

In Clive's classroom learning happens through experience, both good and bad. One tactic he uses to facilitate an open classroom is the weekly presentation of the Failure Cup. Made by the chef himself, the burned and melted measuring cup is presented as "You Are So Beautiful" plays in the background. It is a highly coveted trophy among his students. There is a lot of laughter in the kitchen classrooms at Lane.

It isn't all fun and games though, each Thanksgiving, Clive gives the students a crash course in high volume production as they prepare a free full Thanksgiving meal for families in need- this year, nearly 2,500 people were served. The Wiper Kitchen is a flurry of activity during the week-long preparation.

Clive says the students enjoy making a difference. "My boss's boss, Vice President of Operations - Brian Kelly - cooks the turkey!" he says. This also serves as a good reminder to the students that as a chef, you won't be taking the holidays off.

Clive feels lucky to work at Lane. "I can't believe they pay me!" he says. He appreciates the encouragement and focus the culinary department has in guiding student interests.

"Lane is generous and kind," Clive says, because their operation is focused on the students. He also feels that people can come to Lane without any idea where they are headed and take advantage of the wide range of programs available to find their path.

Truly a treasure at Lane, Clive uses his charisma and experience to show his students how to breathe life into their passion and, of course, make amazing food.

RICH TRUETT, BI-MART CORPORATE DONOR

Living our Mission

Bi-Mart is a company that lives up to its mission — employee owned and operated and closely involved with the communities served by its stores.

Just ask Rich Truett, “I started working at Bi-Mart when I was 19 and I’ve been here ever since.” Rich’s experience is a testimonial to Bi-Mart’s investment in its employees and the local community. Today, the Bend native is the President and Chief Operating Officer of Bi-Mart in Eugene.

Part of Rich’s role as CEO is to direct Bi-Mart’s philanthropy in our community. Bi-Mart has partnered with the Lane Community College Foundation since 1994, supporting the Foundation in its goal to increase access to affordable education in Lane County. Through sponsorships and gifts to scholarships, Bi-Mart has helped the Foundation achieve these goals year after year. Bi-Mart has also made significant in-kind contributions to the Foundation, ranging from an artisan kitchen mixer to tickets to the Willamette Country Music Festival for the annual Harvest Dinner and Auction. For the past seven years, Bi-Mart’s annual sponsorship of this event has helped Lane raise awareness as well as funds for scholarships and Lane programs. Over the years, Bi-Mart has also consistently sponsored scholarships for Business, Lane Athletics, Computer Information Sciences, and more.

Bi-Mart not only invests in its employees, it invests in the education of the local workforce through partnerships. At Bi-Mart, Rich says, you can find many people who went to Lane, from their IT department to the mechanics in its truck shop. As a further investment in its employees, the Bi-Mart Corporation offers a partial tuition reimbursement program as an incentive to encourage employees to continue their educational pursuits. “Employees in our community who take advantage of this program predominately go to Lane,” Rich says.

“Lane serves a great need in the community,” Rich says. He appreciates the wide variety of courses and opportunities available on campus. “Whether you are coming to Lane for enrichment or to pursue a degree, it’s a great place for the community.”

“Whether you are coming to Lane for enrichment or to pursue a degree, it’s a great place for the community.”

"I find scholarships offered at Lane mean a lot more to students. The need is greater and the commitment level to restarting their lives is deep."

GLENN A CLEMENS, 1945-2005

Touching lives

Born and raised in Eugene, Glenna and Armond met at St. Francis High School. They dated during high school, college, and through his military service, before marrying in 1968.

Glenna lived a full life. She was passionate about education, nursing, leadership by example, and her four daughters- Ann, Amie, Christy and Laurie. She received her nursing degree from Sacred Heart School of Nursing in 1966, a bachelor's degree from The University of Oregon in 1968, and a master's degree in 1973 from Oregon Health Sciences University. She was a nursing instructor at Lane Community College from the late '70s until 2005. "Single parents were her soft spot. She worried about them having reliable childcare and a support system. She always said that they were the most dedicated students in the program. She had empathy for how hard they had to work," says Armond.

When Glenna passed away, her friends and family knew the best legacy they could give her was to start a scholarship endowment. Establishing this robust endowment was a group effort. Armond's employer, Guistina Land and Timber Company, used its family foundation to match Armond's own significant investment in the fund and other members of the Guistina family have also contributed through the years. To date, the Glenna Clemens Scholarship endowment has helped 25 students achieve their dreams.

Ann recalls meeting a particular scholarship recipient, "She had researched mom and was talking about her, she had us crying with the wonderful things she said. You can see mom still reaches people, still helps them."

Christy, a physician's assistant, says, "Her time at Lane defined her- Mom was a teacher. My current nurse was trained by my mom and when I go to the hospital I always meet other nurses she trained. She would have loved to see Lane's completed Health and Wellness Center and the simulation lab she worked to put together. She was so instrumental to so many people — I'm always amazed."

Glenna's long tenure at Lane will forever be remembered as her endowment continues to help students in need. "I find scholarships offered at Lane mean a lot more to students. The need is greater, and the commitment level to restarting their lives is deep," says Armond.

DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI

Sallylou Bonzer

Sallylou Bonzer, Retired US Army Captain and nurse, believes in the value of education and the importance of public service and volunteerism. "Sign me up!" has always been her motto. She enlisted in the US Army during WWII as a nurse, and headed to the battle of Normandy. She was honored with multiple Bronze Stars, medals, honors and was featured in The Chicago Tribune as well as a five-page nursing pictorial spread in the 1948 April Fools edition of The Saturday Evening Post, "I think it was perfect for my feisty personality," Sallylou says.

She married John Bonzer in 1947. While he practiced Internal Medicine, she raised their children, served on committees, and volunteered. Sallylou enrolled at Lane in the late 1960s to earn a transfer degree. She says, "Lane offered me a chance to start a new chapter in my life."

While completing a bachelor's degree in Special Education at the University of Oregon she also worked at Sacred Heart. Today, Sallylou swims daily, volunteers, and is looking forward to becoming more involved with Lane Community College. "Sign me up," she says.

Mike Wildish

Mike Wildish, Vice President and General Manager of Wildish Construction Company Eugene Operations and Assistant Secretary for Wildish Land Company, attended Lane in the 1970s and enjoyed playing baseball for the Titans.

Mike believes in a culture of corporate community support by offering employee tuition subsidies at Lane and encouraging employees to be active in the community. Wildish Construction Company is thankful for the opportunity to be involved in giving back to a community that has supported its company for over 78 years, and Mike credits these learned values to his grandfather, father, and uncles for exemplifying how individuals and organizations can make a difference in the lives of the people they serve.

"Lane is a tremendous value with a great variety of programs offered, flexible class schedules, approachable faculty and staff, and provides an opportunity for almost anyone to go to college." He is proud of his affiliation with Lane, and is inspired by all the individuals and families that have been helped by the continued expansion of Lane's extensive presence in the community.

Julie Daniel

Julie Daniel, Executive Director of BRING Recycling, sees Lane Community College as a pragmatic, practical institution meeting students wherever they are in life, guiding, encouraging, and giving them confidence to succeed. Julie attended Lane in her 20s as a single mother needing a job that would allow her to support her children, in her 40s for a career change, with evening and long distance classes, and through the Non-Profit Management Certificate program. "I attribute much of my success and ability to manage life to the skills I learned at Lane." Julie says.

As Executive Director of BRING Recycling, she has transformed a grass-roots group into a self-sustaining, entrepreneurial non-profit organization dedicated to promoting earth-friendly practices, helping people live well without waste, and making the best use of natural resources.

Julie says, "Lane is so good at helping people realize new possibilities. That is what Lane means to me, a place that makes new opportunities possible; it's why it is such a neat school. It is accessible to everyone, and is a community treasure."

Dr. Helen Lester

Dr. Helen Lester attended the Dental Hygiene Program at Lane, received a bachelor's degree at the University of Oregon, and a doctoral degree from Creighton University. Her mother, Dee, taught her to respond to community needs, a practice she pursues daily. She says, "I have an obligation to give back to the community and I feel blessed to have the opportunity to help."

Her time at Lane gave her a strong foundation and she says, "It was an amazing education. My teachers were exceptional and committed to producing well-qualified dental hygienists primed for success."

She works with the graduating dental hygiene students offering internships and "mock interviews," volunteers at the Lane Sealant Clinic, guest lectures, and instructs students in the Dental Hygiene 2 Program.

Helen also volunteers with Medical Teams International, bringing dental services and supplies to remote villages in Guatemala. Locally, she provides dental screenings for schools and offers dental care for low-income Lane students at no charge. "I continue to be encouraged, to improve myself, to find ways to help more people, and to enhance upon the foundation I built at Lane," she says.

President's Circle

President's Circle members made monetary gifts of $1,000 or more to the Foundation in 2013. We appreciate your generous support of Lane's programs and students.
